FRIENDS OF HOROWHENUA LIBRARIES

The Artworks on display in Te Takere are as intriguing as ever this month

Birgit is an enthusiastic explorer of natural dyes, especially of eco printing, a direct contact dye method, that draws out pigments from leaves onto fabric. She is passionate about experimenting with the endless combinations of eco printing to achieve sophisticated and unique results, often unexpected. Although using a two dimensional technique, the natural and unevenly colours of the prints turn them into a work with a three dimensional impression.

Very skilful use of dye and printing methods on a range of fabrics has resulted in some subtle and very beautiful work.

Keeping our Libraries Beautiful

Once again thanks are due to the team who came to help tidy and clean in Te Takere this month.

A large part of the downstairs non-fiction has benefitted from your efforts. .

We will let you all know when we plan another blitz cleaning and tidying.

Important to Note -

For this sale we will be asking you to bring your own bags to put books in. As more and more Supermarkets wisely phase out one time use plastic bags these are harder to come by, so please BYO!

If you don't have bags available we know there are lovely fabric tote bags available for sale in Te Takere which make great book bags!

Obituary

This week we said goodbye to our Committee member Deborah Burns.

Deborah Burns was an avid reader, and three years ago chose Levin to retire to from Wellington, because of Te Takeretanga o Kura Hau Po.

A psychology graduate from Victoria University, Deborah operated a research and policy consultancy, with a focus on stakeholder management and communications.

She enjoyed local walking and tramping, plus wider interests in arts and architecture.

Deborah was an articulate member of our committee, with a passion for Library Services that were inclusive for all.

The Newspaper and Magazine areas were of great interest to her and I am sure that will be updated when the revised layout is considered.

Thank you Deborah. Farewell.
